2 New Trustees Named To Moses Brown Board

Harold S. Geneen of New York City, president of International Telephone & Telegraph Co., and Frederic S. Cushing of Westport, Conn., a vice president of Holt, Rinehart and Winston Inc., have been appointed trustees of Moses Brown School.

Edwin B. Krause, president of the 23-member Board of Trustees, announced the appointments today. He said the two men would serve on the board as non-members of the Society of Friends, which operates the school.

Mr. Geneen, 53, has been president of ITT since 1959. He obtained his first major position with a large corporation at the age of 32, when he was named chief accountant for an American Can Co. subsidiary.

He was vice president and director of the Raytheon Co. for three years before joining ITT. Mr. Geneen has been vice president, controller and director of Bell & Howell and vice president and controller of Jones & Loughlin Steel Corp. Born in England, Mr. Geneen was brought to this country by his parents when he was a year old. He went to work as a page on the New York Stock Exchange at the age of 16. He received a B.S. degree from New York University by attending night courses while working at various investment houses.

Mr. Cushing is director of the college department of the New York educational publishing firm. He has been active for many years in professional groups that represent the textbook publishing industry and has been chairman of the College Section of the American Textbook Publishers' Institute and chairman of the College Publishers Group.

A 1939 graduate of Moses Brown, Mr. Cushing was born in Providence. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frederic C. Cushing of 94 Blackstone Blvd.

Mr. Cushing did graduate work at Brown University and Carnegie Institute of Technology after he was graduated from Colgate University.

He served in the U.S. Marine Corps during World War II and was a special consultant to the Central Intelligence Agency.
